

Researching Your Ancestors on the Internet

Laura G. Prescott
lgprescott@charter.net

Rochester Genealogical Society
 Thursday, April 21, 2005

The many positives of Internet genealogy

- Access the greatest knowledge base available.
- Locate and correspond with your long-lost relations.
- Find photos, records, documents, more!
- Learn from others.
- Connect to events, workshops, online courses.
- Share successes and frustrations.

The negatives of Internet genealogy

- It is the greatest disseminator and perpetuator of false and harmful information.
- Discover scams at your expense.
- Privacy issues.
- Anything you find online needs to be checked with original sources.
- Citation complications.
- Copyright issues.

Some of the websites highlighted in this discussion.

URL	Name	Description	Fee?
NewEnglandAncestors.org	New England Historic Genealogical Society	The premier website for genealogical research in New England including databases, manuscript images, research articles, Great Migration Newsletter online.	yes
cyndislist.com	Cyndi's List	Links to everything genealogical. The ultimate Internet site catalog for family history research.	no
familysearch.org	FamilySearch (LDS , or Mormon Church)	1880 US census, 1881 British & Canadian censuses, Ancestral File, International Genealogical Index (IGI), Pedigree Resource File, Family History Library catalog & FHC locations.	no*
heritagequestonline.com	Heritage Quest/ProQuest (available only via 3rd party library or similar institution)	Census images, PERSI, searchable local histories and genealogies.	yes*

ancestry.com	Ancestry.com	Census images, city directories, historical newspapers, maps, etc.	Yes
rootsweb.com	RootsWeb	Free site sponsored by Ancestry with material submitted by hundreds of volunteers. Getting started information, message boards, mailing lists.	no
usgenweb.org	The USGenWeb Project	State pages, transcription projects, tombstone project, census info, volunteer projects, research help.	no
gloreCORDS.blm.gov	Bureau of Land Management General Land Office Records	Official federal land patent records site. Access to over two million records for Eastern Public Land states (1820-1908)	no*
loc.gov	The Library of Congress	Library of Congress catalog, the American Memory Project, maps, digitized manuscripts, an historical goldmine.	no
loc.gov/coll/nucmc	National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections (NUCMC)	Catalog of archives and manuscript repositories including detailed descriptions and finding aids of items within collections around the US.	no
google.com	Google	Search engines help you find the information you need with a few simple “keywords” and strategies.	no

Examples

The following are a few libraries and organizations – academic, genealogical, historical, government, etc. – with resources that are representative of the good and useful things you can find online when you explore productively, and with an open mind.

dartmouth.edu/~speccoll	Dartmouth College	Catalogs, finding aids, links to archives and manuscripts	no
acpl.lib.in.us/genealogy	Allen County Public Library	Access to PERSI (for residents only)	no*
masshist.org	Massachusetts Historical Society	The Adams Papers and historical exhibits online	no*
mainememory.net	Maine Memory Network	Online images, photographs, historical accounts	no*
hampton.lib.nh.us	Lane Memorial Library (Hampton, NH)	Example of what local libraries can offer when there’s a genealogist running the show (i.e. website)	no
michigan.gov/hal	Michigan State Library	Example of what state libraries and archives can offer	no